

A close-up photograph of several pink dahlias in various stages of bloom. The flowers have many layers of delicate, ruffled petals in shades of light pink and pale yellow. Several green, unopened flower buds are visible, some with small green leaves. The background is a soft, out-of-focus blur of more pink flowers.

A few instructions on planting and growing dahlias:

- Store your tubers in a cool, dry place that will not freeze
- Once danger of frost has passed and soil has warmed, plant tubers in a location with full sun (6 or more hours)
- Dig holes and plant tubers 4" deep; place tubers on its side with eyes up and backfill with soil
- Do NOT water until leaves emerge. Once tubers have sprouted water every few days
- When plants are 12" tall, pinch out the main stem
 - This stimulates branching and will encourage more flowers
- Remember to support your dahlias (i.e. staking or corraling)
- For continued growth, fertilize, cut and dead head dahlias regularly

Thank you for supporting our farm

Wishing you an abundance of blooms this summer!
